FACTSHEET

- ✓ HB 2204 (Rep. Trebilcock) would help hard-pressed Oklahoma families by increasing Oklahoma's Sales Tax Relief credit, an existing tax credit intended to offset the sales tax on groceries for low- and moderate-income households. The bill as introduced would:
  - Increase the amount of the Sales Tax Relief credit from $40 to $60 per household member for those who are currently eligible for the credit (up to $50,000 for tax filers claiming a dependent child, senior, or person with disability status, or $20,000 for others);
  - Expand eligibility for a partial credit to $60,000 or $30,000, depending on household status. Those with income between current eligibility and expanded eligibility levels would receive a $30 credit; and
  - Index eligibility levels annually to inflation beginning in 2011.
- ✓ Oklahoma families are struggling to meet their basic needs at a time of rising costs and economic uncertainty.
  - The Eastern Oklahoma Food Bank reports a 42 percent increase in the number of individuals seeking food assistance in the first eight months of 2008 compared to 2007.
  - Oklahoma has among the nation's highest rates of food insecurity. From 2005-07, an average of 13 percent of Oklahomans were found to have low or high levels of food security, the 7th highest rate in the nation.
- ✓ Oklahoma is one of just 16 states that taxes groceries.
  - Since poor and moderate-income families spend a greater share of their income on groceries than do wealthier families, taxing groceries is regressive.
  - Families with income between $10,000 and $15,000 spend, on average, 17.2 percent of income on groceries; families between $30,000 and $35,000 spend 7.8 percent, and families above $70,000 average spend 3.8 percent (2006 Consumer Expenditure Survey).
- ✓ Increasing the Oklahoma Sales Tax Relief Credit (commonly known as the grocery tax credit) would be a targeted, fiscally responsible way of helping families in need keep pace with rising food costs.
  - The credit was claimed by some 850,000 Oklahomans in 2008, or about one in every four individuals, with credits totaling $34.1 million.
  - Because eligibility for the credit has been unchanged while incomes rise, the number of recipients has been decreasing in recent years.
